OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this course, participants will be able to:

1) Describe how decisions made based on the then current state of knowledge about drug resistance failed to be revised when new data became available.

2) Identify mechanisms that promote the emergence of drug resistance in mycobacteria.

3) Evaluate strategies for preventing the emergence of resistance to currently used and future agents.